HOPEWELL MUSEUM TO HOST SOCIETY'S SPRING MEETING JUNE 29

Mark your calendar for June 29, and join Society members and guests at 2 p.m. for the Society's Spring Meeting, at the Hopewell Museum, 28 East Broad Street, Hopewell, NJ. A tour of the museum will follow the meeting and we will round out the afternoon with refreshments.

The Museum was founded in 1922 to house the collection of antiques offered to the community by Miss Sarah D. Stout. Its aim is to preserve and display what is most typical and interesting of village life in America from colonial to present times. In its fine collections it presents the community in review.

John Hart, the signer of the Declaration of Independence from Hunterdon County lived in Hopewell. Old Hunterdon County included the village of Columbia which, with the establishment of a post office in 1825, became Hopewell. Then in 1838 Hunterdon County was divided to create a new County, called Mercer, and Hopewell was located in the portion annexed to Mercer.

Hopewell has sent its sons to fight in every war from the Revolution to present and many of its early settlers moved on to settle the west, particularly the Ohio territory.

Jonathan Stout settled in the immediate vicinity of the town and his brother, David, settled over the Sourland ridge. Tradition goes that the brothers would meet on the mountain each morning and exchange greetings. David, saying to Jonathan, "I hope you are well." Jonathan's reply was, "I am well," giving rise to the naming of the townships of Hopewell and Amwell.

Curator Mrs. Beverly Weidl and trustees are pleased to have Hunterdon County Historical Society members and guests visit the Hopewell Museum on June 29 to learn more about the Hopewell Valley, its history and people.

Reprints: Deats Marriage Records

Marriage Records of Hunterdon County, New Jersey 1795-1875 compiled by Hiram Edmund Deats and first published in 1918 has been invaluable for those engaged in Hunterdon County genealogical research. The book has long been out of print and copies are eagerly sought by genealogists. Hunterdon House, publisher of genealogical publications and reprints, in cooperation with the Hunterdon County Historical Society is reprinting the book with additions and corrections.

The Hunterdon County Clerk's original copy of this book is heavily annotated with corrections and additions entered by at least three persons. Each added entry has been verified with ministers' and justices' returns. Omissions and spelling errors account for most of the added entries. Over 50 marriages, occurring between 1802 and 1878, were not recorded in the County Clerk's register until February 1937 and thus were not included in the 1918 edition. These will now be printed for the first time.

Order Marriage Records of Hunterdon County, New Jersey 1795-1875 before July 1, 1986 and take advantage of the pre-publication price of $21. Thereafter, the price is $25.

History of Hunterdon and Somerset Counties, New Jersey, by James P. Snell, published in 1881, reprinted by the Historical Society in 1976, is out of print. The 1873 Atlas of Hunterdon County, New Jersey, by Beers, Comstock and Cline, also a Society reprint, is likewise sold out. Anyone wishing to purchase copies of either or both books, is asked to advise the Society. Potential sales will have a significant impact on the Trustees' decision whether to reprint.

Sanborn Maps Valuable Restoration Source

If a building was located in a town or city its plan and position in relation to surrounding buildings is shown in successive editions of the Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps from the 1860's to 1950. These maps are a valuable resource for anyone who wants to learn about the history of their town or neighborhood or is restoring a building which appears on these maps.

The maps were introduced to assist fire insurance agents in determining the degree of hazard associated with a particular property. They are large scale plans measuring 65 x 55 cm showing the outline of each building, the size, shape and construction and the location of windows and doors. Street names, street and sidewalk widths, property boundaries, building use and house and block numbers are shown on them. Colors and shading and symbols indicate different building materials and construction details. Information on building use is provided within the range of symbols, and locations of pipelines, railroads, wells, dumps are noted.

The Sanborn collection of maps in the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. includes about 50,000 editions of maps from the copyright deposit collection and the Bureau of Census. In 1983 the entire collection was reproduced on archivally permanent silver positive black and white microfilm at a reduction of 18x. The arrangement within each state is by town or city name. Within each town or city the maps are filmed in chronological order. Films for an entire State may be purchased. Towns within Hunterdon County boundaries for which maps were printed are listed here.

The Society collection contains sets of maps for Flemington, 1902, and Lambertville, 1912. The Jerseyana Collection in the New Jersey State Library and Firestone Library at Princeton University have copies of other editions. In addition, reproductions may be ordered from the Library of Congress.

Reproductions from the Lambertville map illustrate the variety of information to be obtained from the Sanborn fire insurance maps.

Marriages In The Amwell Presbyterian Church 1766-1787

The First English Presbyterian Church in Amwell may have been established as early as 1720, and was located at Pleasant Ridge, halfway between Ringoes and Reaville, on the Old York Road, where the graveyard now exists, in East Amwell Township. Unfortunately, the very earliest records of this Church no longer exist, as it was the policy among the Presbyterians that the baptismal and marriage records were the personal property of the minister.

However, the "Record of Marriages," kept by the third and fourth pastors of the Amwell Presbyterian Church, has recently come to light. A small book, measuring 6 inches by 7 inches, now among the miscellaneous volumes of the manuscript collection of the Bureau of Archives and History, Trenton, contains four marriages performed by the Reverend William Kirkpatrick, and nineteen marriages celebrated by his successor the Reverend John Warford.

The history of the Amwell Presbyterian Church, and of the Reverends Kirkpatrick and Warford, has been amply recorded (see in particular The History of the First English Presbyterian Church in Amwell, by the Reverend John B. Kugler [1912], and A History of East Amwell, 1700-1800 [1976]). However, the correlation between the two ministers is of such significance, that it is worth repeating here, and probably accounts as to why the two divines' records are to be found in the same volume.

William Kirkpatrick, who was born in 1727, married, in Philadelphia, 4 May 1764, Margaret Piper, who was nineteen years his junior. The Kirkpatricks came to Amwell in 1766 with their infant daughter, Lettice, and in the next year their second daughter, Hannah, was born. Reverend William Kirkpatrick died 8 September 1769, and two months later his son William, was born posthumously. The young widow and her three children were allowed to remain in the parsonage free of rent, so long as not needed by a successor to Mr. Kirkpatrick.

The Reverend John Warford, who was born in 1745, one year before the Widow Kirkpatrick, received a call to the Amwell Church in 1776 which he accepted, arriving on 31 July of that year. Upon his arrival he realized the situation with regard to the parsonage and Mrs. Kirkpatrick, and, not wishing to displace the widow and her children, he did the next best thing: he went to the parsonage for a wife. The couple was married on 12 August 1776, after a courtship of thirteen days! They became the parents of six children.

Upon taking on the responsibility of the Reverend Kirkpatrick's wife, children and parsonage, the Reverend Warford apparently assumed the responsibility of Kirkpatrick's personal church records as well, thus accounting for the marriages performed by him being in the same volume as those by Mr. Kirkpatrick. John Warford went on to be the minister of the Presbyterian Church in Salem, Washington County, New York, in 1788, where he died on 19 May 1802. Margaret (Piper) Kirkpatrick Warford lived another twenty-one years, never to take on a third husband.
