All Aboard for the June Excursion!

Mark June 25, on your calendar and join our excursion via the Black River and Western Railroad, to Lambertville. Our steam train leaves Flemington (Turntable Junction) at 11:30 on Saturday morning. We hope the musicians who make up the Black River & Western Gang will be available to accompany us and entertain during our trip.

Upon arrival at the Lambertville Depot, we will walk a short distance to the Lambertville House for luncheon. This inn was established and has operated since 1812. Following lunch John Bishop, president of the BR & W, will share with us some of his knowledge of the history of railroading in Hunterdon County. Mr. Bishop has been a railroad "buff" since receiving his first Lionel trains as a young boy. He became interested in the BR & W as a hobby when the railroad was located in Chester in the early 1960's, and has been president for the past thirteen years.

Members of the Lambertville Historical Society have graciously invited us to visit the Marshall House, which is their headquarters. This was the boyhood home of James Wilson Marshall, discoverer of gold at Sutter's Mill in California in 1848. The house has been restored to its 1816 appearance by the New Jersey Historic Sites Division, Department of Environmental Protection. Other activities are being planned for the afternoon.

Our train will leave Lambertville about 4 p.m. for the return trip to Flemington.

We request that reservations for the BR & W trip, Saturday, June 25, be made by June 20. The cost per person, including luncheon and train fare, will be $8.50. If you have questions about the trip, call the Hunterdon Society, 201/782-1091.

Architectural Gems Abound in Hunterdon

(Dennis N. Bertland is currently conducting a survey of architecture in Hunterdon County. Employed by the Board of Freeholders and working with the County Cultural and Heritage Commission, Bertland will be visiting all parts of the County during the next several months. His goal is to locate structures depicting the typical and atypical examples of early architectural styles in Hunterdon County. If you know of a structure which might be of interest to Bertland, contact the Society at 201/782-1091.)

BERTLAND EXAMINES DORLAND'S MILL

When considering Hunterdon County's rich architectural heritage, certain buildings such as the Court House in Flemington and Van Syckel's Tavern, northwest of Clinton, come readily to mind. However, there are many other structures, less well known, that also contribute to a historical sense of place. Dorland's Mill on Teetertown Road in Lebanon Township must be counted among them.

Beer's Atlas of Hunterdon County shows that a mill existed at its site in 1874 and identifies a dwelling immediately adjacent to the west with the name S. Dorland. Snell's History of Hunterdon and Somerset Counties, N.J. written several years later, states that "S. Dorland's gristmill, in School District No. 2, was built in 1820".

While little else is known of its history, the small braced-frame gambrel roofed structure is typical of the many mills built throughout the county over the course of the 19th century to serve local needs. Its 2½ stories rest on a stuccoed stone bank cellar on the west side of the small creek which provided the necessary water power. The existing clapboards cover an earlier siding of random width vertical planks; the slate roof probably replaces one of wood shakes. The batten-doored dormer with hoist overhang was undoubtedly built on the west to take advantage of the level ground. Dutch doors for the first and second floors open directly below it. A wooden roller remains between them.

A wooden roller may be a simple thing, but in its place it communicates something to the observer about how things were done at Dorland's Mill. In a similar way, other structures found around the county along a busy town street or at a country crossroads can communicate some aspect of our cultural past.

Bicentennial Inspires Local Histories

America's bicentennial celebration has taken many forms, ranging from the frivolous to the scholarly. Of all these, perhaps the most enduring will be the many publications created by local historical societies and bicentennial committees. In the researching and writing of these materials, an interest in local history has been rekindled in author and reader alike.

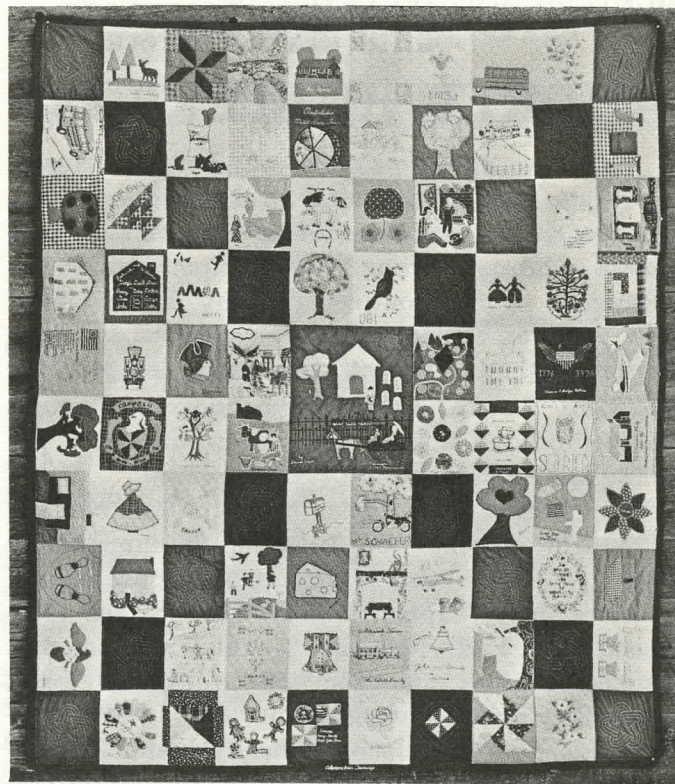

Thirteen Hunterdon County communities have produced a variety of publications. Some have delved deeply into the history of their areas, others have concentrated on the history of local organizations and the recollections of older residents. Though they vary in quality, all of these publications have added to the literature about the county.

Without a doubt, the biggest and best of these is the 266 pg. book produced by the East Amwell Bicentennial Committee, "A History of East Amwell, 1700-1800". The research behind this volume was obviously extensive. Each chapter is followed by a bibliography that reveals the use of many primary sources. Contributors spent many hundreds of hours combing the archives of the state and county to bring the reader new and well-documented information. It is this use of primary sources that makes the East Amwell book unique.

An example of this research is the chapter on the men of old Amwell Township who served in the Revolutionary War. Mary Elizabeth Sheppard has spent three years compiling information from many sources to give a brief history of each soldier that includes his birthdate, residence and service record along with as much data on his family as could be ascertained. The product of this research is a fascinating chapter that is sure to be of interest to historian and genealogist alike.

The book is illustrated with many photographs and three interesting maps of East Amwell property lines, plotted and drawn by committee members. One can only speculate how much more material, that could not be included because of the space limitations, has been collected and hope that these things will also be presented to the public in the future.

The book is not without mechanical flaws, but far fewer than might be expected from a first-time effort of dedicated amateurs. In all, the text, photos and maps are a combination of which the committee members can be very proud. They have given a great

HUNTERDON'S LAST VETERANS OF THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR

ANDREW BUTTERFOSS

Andrew Butterfoss, who was born in Amwell Township, Hunterdon County, had a varied career as a soldier of the American Revolution. Joining a local militia in his native county, he eventually enlisted as a member of the Continental Army. In his almost five years as a soldier, he was engaged in major battles in three different states, was sick with the smallpox, deserted for a brief period, saw Generals Washington and Lincoln, and was wounded for life in the Battle of Monmouth.

In August, 1776, when eighteen years old, and a resident of Kingwood Township, Andrew volunteered to be a militiaman for a period of one month, to serve under Captain William Gearhart and Lieutenant John Farley. Meeting "at the White House in Hunterdon", his unit marched to Elizabethtown, where they passed the month.

Under Captain Jacob Groendyke and Lieutenant Benjamin Horn he made another tour of duty in October, 1776. While serving under these men, Andrew was involved in the first of his several encounters with the British during the war. On January 20, 1777 he participated in the "Skirmish at Van Nest's Mills" in Somerset County. During this conflict, Andrew was among those who took the enemy's forge.

Andrew's next tour of duty found him under Captain Jacob Gearhart, at which time (February, 1777) he was stationed at Somerset Court House (now Millstone, Somerset County). While here, he enlisted in the United States service as a Continental Soldier, under Adam Hope, a recruiting officer. Enlisting "for three years or during the war", Andrew and six others (William Russell, Lot Lambert, John Smith, Joseph Rich, Samuel Allen and Thomas Soper), became members of Colonel Ephraim Martin's 4th Regiment of New Jersey Regulars, effective February 20, 1777.

A few months later Private Butterfoss was transferred to Captain Proctor's Artillery. Sent to Chatham, Morris County, Andrew spent time there "engaged in disciplining and exercising". While at Chatham he was placed in the flying army under Captain John Anderson, in Colonel Dayton's Regiment and General Maxwell's Brigade. This transfer occurred just previous to the battle fought at Short Hills, at which place he joined the army. The Battle of Short Hills, on June 26, 1777, was the first major engagement in which he participated. After this, Andrew was in the skirmish which took place at Springfield.

During the summer of 1777 Andrew had the smallpox, and was "Sick in [the] Hospitale" in August and September of that year.

Once recovered, Andrew went with "a large detachment" up the North (Hudson) River, in the early part of October 1777. When they were above Albany, near Saratoga, they learned that Burgoyne had surrendered. Upon hearing of this American victory, Andrew and his fellow soldiers "fired three rounds & gave three cheers and returned to New Jersey". Although not an active participant in this battle, in the parade held in Flemington on July 4, 1826, marking the fiftieth anniversary of American Independence, "Andrew Butterfoss of Amwell," carried the "Saratoga" banner.

When Andrew returned to New Jersey, he "passed over by Coryell's Ferry [Lambertville] to Pennsylvania". His unit marched to "the Schuy kill and lay there in camp until the British came to the Brandywine", in which battle he took part. From there he "marched with the cattle to Frankford and there was placed on board a shalop containing the wounded and went with them to Trenton". Through the winter he cared for the wounded. During this time he became sick "and went home". Apparently after his recovery he did not return to his unit, and in April, 1778, was declared a deserter. However, by May he was mustered, and shortly thereafter was in pursuit of the British".

On June 28, 1778 Andrew was among the many in the Battle of Monmouth. Here he was shot in the leg, and was thereafter "a cripple for life". Immediately after the battle he "was sent an invalid to West Point at which place he remained nearly three years". While here Andrew served as a private in the Engineer Corps for three months under General McDougall. Andrew Butterfoss was discharged from the Continental Army at West Point "five days before New Years day in 1781 and reached home 1st Jany. 1782".

While in the Continental Army, Andrew was paid £2-10-0, or "6 2/3 Dollars" a month. With this money, he returned to Hunterdon County, and eventually settled in Alexandria Township, where, in July, 1785, he was recorded as a "householder", owning no land, but possessing a horse and a cow.

There is no record indicating that Andrew ever owned any real estate. He appears to have resided for about ten years in Hunterdon County after the war, first in Alexandria Township, and then in Amwell Township, where he was living in 1795. About 1797 he moved to Columbia County, Pennsylvania, and from there to Luzerne County, in the same state, where in 1823, he resided on the Tioga turnpike in Abington Township. He had returned to Amwell Township, Hunterdon County by the time of the 1826 celebration at Flemington. In 1837 he resided in Alexandria Township. In 1840 he was in Delaware Township, and in 1850, was back in Amwell Township.

As for Andrew Butterfoss' personal history, little is known. In his pension application he stated that he was "born in the Township of Amwell" in 1758 "as he has always understood on the 1st of May". His father was Andrew Butterfoss, senior, and his mother "before her marriage was named Horn". Though Andrew did not give his mother's first name in his application, he noted that "his father died as he has understood before he was born and that afterwards his mother intermarried with a man named Horn & had children by him".

In the series entitled "Recollections of Baptist-town and Vicinity", written by John Bellis and appearing in the Hunterdon Independent, part 20, (December 7, 1894), it is stated that Andrew Butterfoss, senior, died about 1759 or 1760, and that his widow, Anna, married William Horner. The same account notes that Andrew Butterfoss, the soldier, married Rebecca Johnson, and that they had sixteen children: Daniel, Nancy, Mary, Samuel, William, Rachel, Sarah, Jerusha, Charlotte, John, James, Charles, Andrew, Enos, Amy and Rebecca.

On January 10, 1823, while a resident of Abington Township, Luzerne County, Pennsylvania, in one of his first attempts to secure a pension from the Government, Andrew declared, with regard to his family:

I am by occupation a laborer but am disabled by the rheumatism and not able to work — I have a wife named Rebecca sixty-five years & upwards of age also troubled with infirmity. I have seven sons under low circumstances living out and supporting themselves by laborer [sic] (excepting one who is at home named Enos & a weakly man) six daughters four married and gone off to the State of Ohio — and the remaining two at home one thirteen and the other fifteen years of age.

Andrew's wife, Rebecca, appears to have died between 1840 and 1850, being recorded as between 70 and 80 years of age in the Federal Census of 1840. She was not recorded in the 1850 census, at which time Andrew is listed as 97 (sic) years of age, and residing with Philip and Mary Urick, probably his daughter and son-in-law. Andrew was the oldest living male inhabitant of Hunterdon County at the time of the 1850 census.

Andrew's death date is not known. He was living on March 4, 1851 when he was last paid by the Pension Office.

Two Early Documents List Our First Settlers

After the publication in 1903 of his monumental genealogy of the family of the Rev. John Moore, the compiler, Prof. James W. Moore of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., continued to collect information on the family. This material—correspondence, newspaper clippings, photographs, and extensive notes on the Moore, Titus, Hart, Burroughs and other families of local interest—was eventually incorporated with the original text, bound into a three-volume set, and deposited in the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Between page 512 (the end of Appendix LIV, "Some Early Arrivals in America", and page 513, beginning the General Index, are several inserts including two of prime interest to Hunterdon County: Heads of Families living in and around Maidenhead (Lawrenceville), N.J. in 1722 consisting of three handwritten sheets and four typed pages, the Tax List of Hunterdon County, N.J. 1722. While the source for the former list is given in this introduction, none is given for the Tax List and therefore its authenticity cannot be guaranteed.

Only two explanatory notes seem to be necessary:

1. in the first list, the reference to page 425 is to Appendix XLIV, "Pole of Hunterdon County, N.J.," taken in 1738, where reference is also made to Snell's History of Hunterdon and Somerset Counties, N.J., p. 192;
2. the bracketed numbers in the Tax List refer to numbers used to identify persons in the printed Moore genealogy.

Grateful acknowledgement is made to the Historical Society of Pennsylvania for permission to publish this material.

Heads of families living in and around Maidenhead (Lawrenceville) N.J. in 1722

Leaves of an old account book found among the papers of John Johnson<sup>2</sup> (Rut. Johnson<sup>1</sup> who was at New Utrecht, L.I., 1660 and in Hopewell Tsp. N.J. as early as 1697, when he bought much land). The name of Robert Eaton is scribbled on two or three pages. Accounts of the same families are found in John Johnson's books in 1736. He died in 1752. The stock in trade consisted in General Merchandise, pens, yarn and wool, grain, skins and rum, dry goods and groceries, side saddles, silk beaver hats. These old leaves are in the possession of Mrs. Augustine Johnson of Princeton, N.J. Mrs. Cook of Lambertville, N.J. furnished this list to me (J.W. Moore). I edited the paper and sent it to the New Jersey Historical Society for publication [no indication of such publication has been found]. John Johnson lived and died at Stony Brook in Lawrence Twp. two miles from Princeton. The names given are of persons from Princeton, Pennington, Maidenhead and the region around Stony Brook.

Our Doric House headquarters provides the background for a group on their way to the parade which preceded the Flemington Fair. The driver is Leonard Weiss and the passengers beginning with the girl next to him are: Delta Corcoran, Agnes Weiss, Margaret Cavanaugh, Eleanor Weiss, Irma Appgar and [unknown]. Can you help us date this photograph by the car model and year and the styles of dress?
