Title	Papers of the Flemington Children's Choir School II, 1895-2002	Year Range	1895-2002

Location Doric House: Vault 1

Description This collection is a mixture of records from both the older, original Flemington Children's Choir School (1895-1958) and the newer, revived version (1980-2000) that functioned as an extension of the original "Chorus of the Alumni." It contains a series of administrative and a series of operational records from both versions of the school. There is a series of various items of historic interest from the original version of the school and a small series (two folders) of multimedia performances of the original choir. The largest single portion of the collection is a series of photographic images that capture many of the individuals that were involved with the school between 1895 and 1958. The bulk of the group includes graduation photographs, group posed portraits and individual portraits. An index is provided for almost 500 named individuals that appear in images in this collection.

Scope and Content:

This collection is divided into 6 series. The first series deals with administrative records from the Choir School. It includes a group of minutes and administrative subject files that are mostly from the second period of the Choir School, but also an interesting group of roll books (enrollment books) from the original version of the school.

The second series relates to school operations. The first subdivision, correspondence, is mainly from the revived choir school. However, the lesson plans, music appreciation files, and sheet music are all from the original school and were most likely part of Elizabeth Van Fleet Vosseller's teaching materials.

The third series concerns the history of the school, and includes a variety of materials from both main operational time periods of the school's existence. Concert literature, yearbooks, newsletters, awards, personal records, scrapbooks and news clippings are all represented here.

The fourth series is a rich collection of photographic images that significantly documents both the activities of the school and its students. The collection has an unusually high number of identified individuals and places. Following the finding guide, there is an alphabetical index of the names of individuals who are identified as being present in the photographs of this collection along with the number of the image(s) in which they are said to appear.

The fifth series is a small collection of sound recordings for the School. One CD has a record of the Graduation Exercises of 1954, while the other CD (a 2 CD set) is unidentified as to the performance and date.

The sixth series is a collection of documents related to the donation of the Flemington Choir School building and the formation of the Flemington Choir School Alumni Association.

The Flemington Children's Choir School was founded in 1895 by Elizabeth Van Fleet Vosseller and Elizabeth Hopewell. The primary purpose of the Choir School was to train the junior choirs of various Flemington churches, including the Baptist, Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, and Presbyterian, and they provided much of the funding for the school. The first graduation was held in 1907, and the school continued in operation until the last class graduated in 1958. Until 1920, the Choir School mainly operated out of the Flemington Presbyterian Church, and this was also the site of the graduation exercises through 1958. In 1920, a second floor studio in a building on Higgins Alley (now Chorister Place) was converted to house the school. In 1927, this building was completely renovated and updated to be the permanent home of the Choir School. The Choir School was a vibrant and active participant in the Flemington community. The yearly graduation often featured as many as 200 Choristers and 150 members of the "Chorus of the Alumni." Many other concerts were held by the school, both inside and outside of formal church services. The school started caroling through the streets of Flemington on Christmas morning in 1909, and also participated in the town Tree Lighting Ceremony. Although a Flemington institution, the Choir School's impact was felt far beyond the town. Elizabeth Van Fleet Vosseller, through her work with the Choir, became a nationally known and respected figure in the world of Choir Schools. She was nationally recognized as an authority on the voice of young boys. Her books and other publications that illustrated her teaching and organization plans for junior choirs were considered foundational for religious musical programs and featured many examples used with the Flemington Choir School. She was often considered "the foster mother of all children's choirs in America," and the Choir School in Flemington enjoyed a brief national fame that was almost as bright as hers. Miss Vosseller directed the Choir School until her death in 1938. Elizabeth Hopewell continued as Director until 1945, when she was succeeded by Sara Alwater. She, in turn, was succeeded by Mrs. Frank Lott until the school closed in 1958. In 1959 the Westminster Choir College of Princeton attempted to reactivate the school and reorganize, but the lack of support by the original supporting churches, and the development of musical instruction in public schools led to little public interest. After the school closed in 1958, it was used for some time as a place of instruction for private music tutors. In 1980, the operation of the Choir School entered a period of renaissance. The Board of Trustees, which had been long dormant, was revived and reorganized; the Choir School Building was donated to the County of Hunterdon and restored as a historical landmark; and the school began operating again as a center of cultural and musical appreciation. Throughout the decade of the 1980's, and into the 1990's, the revived operation, mainly through the interest and efforts of concerned living alumni, provided a series of musical events and sponsored scholarships for local students. As the millennium turned, however, the number of living alumni dwindled and interest in the school's operations waned again. In October 2009, the remaining trustees released the County of Hunterdon from their building operations; and in 2010 the Trustees dissolved and released the bulk of their remaining records to the Hunterdon County Historical Society.
